

Short Biography:

Raheleh Assari is an assistant professor of pediatric rheumatology in Children's Medical Center, Tehran University of Medical Sciences. Dr Assari is interested in researches in the area of connective tissue diseases, diagnosis and treatment of autoinflammatory disorders, macrophage activation syndrome and the recently introduced multisystem inflammatory syndrome in children. Dr Assari's goal in research and practice is increasing awareness of parents and patients with connective tissue diseases and ameliorating the outcome of such disorders. She is a member of pediatric rheumatology international trial organization (PRINTO).